RESEARCH INTERESTS

I am a physical oceanographer with three decades of experience in modelling and conceiving large international observing projects to better assess ocean and climate processes and monitor changes. The approach I favored during the last 15 years is to promote interdisciplinary studies to understand the ocean nonlinear dynamics and its impact on biogeochemistry, marine biome and ecosystems and the atmosphere. I am also working together with the international community (within projects and organizations) to improve the ocean observing strategy and capacity. Indeed, the ocean is key to the future of humanity challenged by a rapidly changing climate.
